

Hyacinth Rinke Becomes Bride Of Kenneth Corniels

St. Mary's Catholic church, Mokena was the scene last Sunday of the marriage of Miss Hyacinth Rinke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rinke to Kenneth Corniels, son of Mr. Albert Corniels of Yorkville.

Lighted altar candles and bouquets of gladioli and white clematis formed a lovely background for the 4 o'clock double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Benedict Pfeiffer.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. Cecelia Walsh, organist, played appropriate wedding music as the guests were being ushered into the church. Miss Irene Kluth of Chicago was the guest soloist and sang "Ave Maria" as the first selection.

The church pews decorated with clusters of blooming white clematis vine and tied with white satin ribbon formed a lovely aisle for the bride who was escorted to the altar by her father.

Wearing a Princess style white satin gown made with a long train, the bride carried a bouquet of white roses and baby mums. Her lace edged, finger tip veil was held in place with a tiara of shirred lace and her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Proceeding the bride was her little sister, Gladys Ellen, whose floor length white nylon gown worn over peach satin, was trimmed with baby blue satin bows matching those worn in her hair. Gladys carried an arrangement of gladioli and after the marriage ceremony the bride placed it on the Blessed Mothers' Altar, then knelt in silent prayer, while Miss Kluth sang the very appropriate, "Mother, at Your Feet I'm Kneeling."

Miss Jean Gawenda of Joliet, was the maid of honor, and wore a gown of baby blue silk crepe made with a cap sleeved, fitted bodice, and bouffant skirt. A blue shirred band with a halo of white flowers was worn in her hair and in shoulder length white gloved hands she carried a colonial bouquet of peach and white gladioli.

Miss Jean Shevlin of Mokena and Miss Betty Ruth Corniels of Bristol, who were the bridesmaids were groomed in peach colored silk crepe, trimmed identically like that of the maid of honor, wearing matching head bands adorned with a halo of flowers, they also wore white gloves and carried similar bouquets.

Mr. Albert Sugaske was best man and ushers were George Rinke, Jr. and Raymond Corniels.

Following the lovely ceremony the wedding reception was held in St. Mary's Hall. The bridal damask covered table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake and was followed by tall white lighted tapers. The wedding supper was served by young lady friends of the bride to 175 invited guests who were relatives and intimate friends from Mokena, Tinley Park, Orland, Joliet, Morris, Chicago, Lockport, Bristol, Plainfield, Yorkville, Aurora, Glenwood, Chicago Heights, LaGrange, Waukegan and South Bend Ind.

Mrs. Rinke wore a brown crepe dress with green accessories and a corsage of white gladioli for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Walter Corniels, aunt of the groom attired in black crepe wore a corsage of pink gladioli.

When the couple departed on a ten day motor trip the bride was wearing an autumn green dressmaker styled suit. Her accessories were brown and she wore a corsage of white roses.

Upon their return the couple will reside in Joliet where they have rented a small apartment.

Village Of Frankfort Marks Sts. For Parking

The Village of Frankfort is progressing in a fashion that fits this modern day. They are marking their streets for parking. Some of the streets are already completed.

The markings are being done both diagonally and lengthwise. On Kansas, the main street, the north side is lengthwise and diagonally on the south side.

Two north and south streets, Hickory and Ash, are also marked, diagonally on the east side and lengthwise on the west side. The two systems of markings are being used because of the fact that the streets are not quite wide enough to accommodate the diagonal system on both sides and allow enough space for traffic.

Mr. Geo. Sangmeister, president of the village board is asking all to cooperate in keeping this system of parking.

The Village of Frankfort has also ordered the steel street signs. These signs will be erected on steel pipes set in concrete and anchored so as not to be able to be turned.

The Lions Club members and businessmen of the village will pay for the installing of the signs. The money which was cleared from the movies given during the summer by the Lions club and businessmen will be used for this purpose. The signs will be black lettering on a white background. This is again a move forward and one in which Frankfort will be proud.

Mokena School Principal To Broadcast

Next Wednesday evening at 8:15 on the regular weekly broadcast of the Will County Health program, over WJOL, Joliet, Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel, will tell of the co-operation of the Health department with schools, as from her experience in the Mokena Public schools.

Rev. Paul Saunders of Marley, will present her and will explain the work the County Health Department has been doing.

The County Health department was established as an emergency measure and financed by the Federal Government during the war. This financial aid will be withdrawn soon and at the coming November election the citizens in this county will be given an opportunity to say if they want this valuable work continued or not, by support of only the County taxes. It is pointed out that over a large area as Will County is, the extra taxes will not be very much but the work is so very important that we feel it would be a great mistake to have this department closed.

Dr. Sharpe, is the physician who is head of the work and they have been doing some very valuable work. A few years ago, when there was quite a serious flood in Joliet, this department investigated all the drinking water and gave free anti serums for diseases caused by infected and impure drinking water. Also, a great stride forward has been carried on for the past four years in the locating and controlling of venereal diseases.

Big Air Show At Rubinkam Air Port

The greatest, most spectacular air show ever to be held in Illinois will be put on by the Civil Air Patrol and Army Air Force, Saturday, September 21st at 2 p.m. at Rubinkam Airport, Harvey, Ill.

Lt. Col. Gordon DaCosta, Commander of the Illinois Wing of CAP states this show will be seen only twice in this state: September 21 at Rubinkam Airport; September 22nd at the new University of Illinois airport. In other states it has been reviewed by many air force generals and thrilled hundreds of thousands of spectators "hungry" to see this display of the latest in aviation.

Highlight of this show is the P-30 Jet Plane that will streak low, often and close across the runways, then climb straight up for thousands of feet until out of sight. This is the same model plane that set a world's record of over 600 miles per hour at the 1946 Cleveland Air Races. In simulated war action, war heroes will also pilot famous P-51 Mustangs, A-26 Attack Bombers, swift, deadly, P-47 Thunderbolts, the magnificent B-29, and other planes that won air supremacy.

Pilot members of Civil Air Patrol, an AAF Auxiliary, will perform aerobatics and precision maneuvers to give exciting evidence of how volunteer airmen in their own planes served in wartime and are ready to serve in peacetime emergencies.

Ground exhibits will feature the newest civilian planes, a fully equipped hospital plane, AAF and enemy aviation equipment used during the war.

All proceeds of the CAP AAF Air Show will be used to provide funds needed by CAP to continue its work on behalf of the people of Illinois. This includes the training of CAP Cadets, young men and women 15 to 17 years of age, in citizenship and fundamentals of aeronautics, so the AAF will always be reservoir of youth prepared to meet and conquer the challenge of the sky, keeping America strong.

Parking facilities will be provided Air Show spectators. Tickets are available for the CAP AAF Air show in the Aircraft display sections of Marshall Fields and Lyttons in Chicago, at your nearest airport, or from members of Civil Air Patrol Squadrons throughout the state.

TO VOTE ON LIBRARY PROJECT AT NEW LENOX

New Lenox township is to have another election. This will be on Tuesday October 8, and will be for the purpose of deciding to support their village library by taxation or not.

New Lenox has had a library for the past several years, and it has been so well patronized that it has grown to the place where it needs to be helped and supported other than by the various womens groups, who have been doing so. Mrs. Laura Morris, has really seen to it that it has been a possibility. It has been a great help for high school students, being able to do their reference work at home, thus not having to stay late at school in the crowded library there. New Lenox library has kept the latest books and high school reference books on hand.

There will be two propositions to vote upon. One will be: whether or not the public will vote one tenth of 1 per cent tax for a free public library. Those interested in this valuable asset hope that it will pass favorably. Manhattan, Plainfield, Orland Park and other small villages have libraries like this and each village voted in favor of a small additional tax.

The library is now situated in the Bruns Barber Shop. The other issue will be the electing of six directors.

Movie and Card Party

The Summit Hill Boosters will have a Card party, beginning with a movie picture, Sept. 20 at 8 pm. in the Summit Hill school. The public is invited.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and gladioli, and also a handkerchief which belonged to her maternal grandmother the late Mrs. Charles White. The attendants dresses were similar in style. Miss Ohla's was of pale pink marquisette and her bouquet was blue and white, while Mrs. Bertelsen wore aqua net over satin and carried a pink and white bouquet. Little Sharon's gown was of pink net and she carried a basket of flowers.

ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT REPUBLICAN'S BIG ISSUE

WHILE A BIT IRREGULAR in its method of adoption and presentation, it would seem the Republican party has offered the voters a one-plank platform for the congressional elections of this year.

That plank declares for government economy, reduction in the number of federal employees and a balanced budget. It consists of a statement by Republican Rep. Clarence Brown of Ohio, and has been given official recognition by being printed in the official party publication.

That plank, at least, covers a problem of first importance to the nation, and that importance will not be seriously disputed by the opposition.

The Democrats undoubtedly will propose something of the same kind, based on the President's recent, indirect lecture to congress on extravagance. That lecture hardly seemed called for in view of the fact that congress cut out 1½ billion dollars from the budget as submitted by the President early this year as a minimum of expenditures that would keep the government operating.

As it now stands the federal government will be in the red for this fiscal year to the amount of 1 billion 900 million dollars, despite an estimated revenue of over 35 billion dollars, the largest peacetime revenue in history of the nation.

To be sure, the President cannot spend money without congressional appropriation, but he can recommend appropriations. He did that. He did not get all he asked for, but enough so the federal budget will be badly out of balance for this present fiscal year. Despite his late plea for economy, after the appropriations were made and the bills signed, the Republicans will not overlook that budget submitted by the President, or the fact the President's party is in control of both houses of congress. That economy plea of the President undoubtedly will constitute the Democratic economy plank.

There were many unnecessary appropriations made by congress during the last session, and many of them were not passed by a strictly party vote. For instance, it would be a safe bet that both Democrats and Republicans, representing California, voted for the improvement in the Sacramento river to make it navigable for ocean-going vessels as far as the city of Sacramento. Any project for spending money in a state almost invariably will be supported by the members of both parties representing that state. Their votes for such appropriations assure them votes for re-election in their state and districts.

But by and large the extravagance the President complains of can be laid at his door, and the door of his party as dominant in both houses of congress. That economy plank is one for which the Republicans should have the best argument.

Regardless of through which party it is to be attained, the people want economy in government; a big reduction in government civilian payrolls; a balanced budget, and, when possible, a reduction in income taxes.

IT WOULD SEEM there are more brains in the house of representatives than are to be found in the senate. It was the representatives who figured how to get $15,000 and save paying taxes on $2,500 of the amount. That little tax saving amounted to better than $800 for each representative and senator, a pretty penny in these days of high costs.

WHERE IS THE LIMIT?

WHAT IS THE TOP PRICE for a house? It cannot be measured in value, but what people will pay. An acquaintance told me he had made a profit of $5,000 by selling his home. A week later he was wondering where he and his family were going to live, and in the end he paid the sale price of that house, including his $5,000 profit, plus another $3,000 for a place comparable with the one he had sold. A re-enactment of the Florida boom of some years ago is being witnessed in all portions of the nation. Everyone is anticipating a profit, but there must be a ceiling somewhere, and some will be caught holding the bag. The one sure winner is Uncle Sam, who collects his internal tax rakeoff on each deal.

IT IS TO BE HOPED the Mead committee gets to the bottom of any and all war graft, and any and all connivance on the part of government officials. We may not get back the money, but we can clean house and get rid of dishonest officials, whoever they may be.

YOU HAVE FOUND OUT WHO, but do you know what you are expected to vote for at the coming election?

SPORTLIGHT
GRANTLAND RICE

THE somewhat dusty files show that a Boston club has never lost a world series contest, with six victories out of six starts — five for the Red Sox and one for the Braves.

This world series mop up began 43 years ago. It began when the Boston A. L. entry of 1903 came from behind to whip the able Pirates with such stars aboard as Hans Wagner, Tommy Leach, Fred Clarke, Sam Leever, Deacon Phillippe, Jimmy Sebring and a few others. Apparently beaten, the Bostonian delegation rallied to ride home on the stout right arm and the stouter heart of Big Bill Dineen. That was victory No. 1, although the world series of 1903 was on the unofficial side.

Nine years later the Red Sox found John McGraw and his Giants in the road. This series went to eight games, where in the final spasm Giant support blew wide open as Christy Mathewson lost a contest he should have won in a common canter.

Earlier in this meeting, around the fifth inning, Harry Hooper saved the day for Boston with the most spectacular of all world series catches when he pulled down Larry Doyle's almost sure home run over the right field fence. The ball already had passed over the fence when Hooper made the miracle catch, crashing into the crowd. He must have used a net.

Speaker Clinches Flag

After that Fred Snodgrass dropped Clyde Engle's easy fly to center that popped into his glove—and then popped out again, Engle reaching second. That was a bit discouraging. But a moment later on, Matty fed Tris Speaker a slow floater and Tris lifted the ball on a high foul pop-up near first base that Fred Merkle lost. Chief Myers made a futile chase as Merkle was vainly looking in various directions for the ball. The high pop-up dropped between these two only 10 feet from first base. Then Speaker broke it up with a single, scoring Engle.

Two years later the Braves crashed into the big show by beating the Athletics four straight. Rudolph, Tyler and James did it. The famous Athletics curled up like a feather attached to a burning match. In these three world series Boston was three up.

In 1915 the Red Sox broke back into the great white spotlight again. They lost to Alexander, one of the great pitchers of all time, and then won the next four games.

In 1916 they won the pennant again and took on the Dodgers. The main feature here was Babe Ruth's extra inning victory over Sherrod Smith. The Babe was then a great left-hander in the box.

Ruth's Last Hurling

In 1918, the Red Sox returned to the post-season carnival for the fifth time. That year they whipped the Cubs where Babe Ruth, dating back to 1916, turned in 29 scoreless innings. Babe was the master of that party, his final as a pitcher before he turned to home-run hitting at Ed Barrows' suggestion. Babe usually carried the world series along with him, using his pitching or batting eye for this worthy purpose. It has now been a matter of 28 years since Boston saw its last world series.

In the last 10 years, Tom Yawkey has spent enough money to win three championships, but this happened in the era or epoch where the Yankees had too much stuff.

It is only natural that Boston supporters are looking for another world series mop-up, making it seven in a row. This time they have the best team the home of the bean and the cod ever has sent into action. It is an even better team than the 1912 outfit that knew Speaker, Lewis and Hooper for the finest defensive outfield in baseball history. Plus Smoky Joe Wood in the box. Plus Bill Carrigan back of the bat.

The 1946 Red Sox carry baseball's two essentials — hitting and pitching. But the Red Sox road record proves that Joe Cronin's young men are far from being invincible. They are the best team in baseball, anyway, although their man-against-man selection doesn't leave any wide margin over the Dodgers or Cardinals, who also can play their share of baseball.

THE STORY THUS FAR:

The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up Dick Jordan, adrift on a raft. He realizes that he is among men little better than pirates. They come upon a drifting schooner with only two people aboard, the demented captain and his daughter, Rose. Tucu and his pirates capture the ship and tie up Rose and Dick. After a fruitless search for the "treasure" supposed to be on the schooner, Tucu goes away, taking Dick with him. Dick escapes and returns to the schooner just in time to rescue Rose from two of the pirates. Rose tells Dick the treasure really exists. Next day they plan how to sail the schooner to land.

CHAPTER IX

A noise from the cabin interrupted, and Rose turned swiftly. "It's Father. He needs me."

Dick remained on the deck, watching the tantalizing object with new interest.

Rose suddenly came out of the cabin, and approached him in great agitation. Her eyes were glistening, and her whole face seemed aflame with some powerful emotion that transformed her into a radiant creature.

"Dick," she called eagerly before reaching his side. "Dick, it's happened—the miracle! I can hardly believe it, but—"

She stopped, trembling all over, her hands clasped in the attitude of prayer. He was by her side instantly, more startled by her happiness than by any fear that he had seen written there before.

"What is it, Rose?" he asked anxiously, catching one of her fluttering hands in both of his.

"It's Father," she breathed softly. "Is he—he—dead?"

The question came out before he had time to think—abruptly, and without premeditation.

"Dead!" she repeated, and then laughed softly. "Dead! No! He's just come to life. He's sane again, Dick. He knows me—remembers everything! He's—he's—"

The tears bubbled from her eyes and rolled down her cheeks; but they were the tears of joy and relief and not of fear or desperation. Dick held one hand and supported her trembling form with an arm.

"I'm silly!" she laughed hysterically, smiling through the tears. "But I can't help it! And I don't care! I can cry for happiness, can't I?"

He barely resisted the temptation to sweep her into his arms and kiss the pouting lips.

"Come," she added a moment later, clutching his arms. "Come and see the miracle."

In the cabin Dick found a much changed man lying on the bed where he had helped put him the night before. The feverish red had died out of the face, and the eyes, inspecting him critically, were as sane as any man's. The blow of the Carib's bludgeon had restored to Captain Bedford his reason. Rose had partly prepared him for meeting Dick by explaining briefly the series of events that had taken place while his mind was under a cloud. He extended a hand suddenly, and said:

"You've saved my little girl's life, I understand. Then—then ye can count on me as an everlastin' friend."

"I don't know what Rose's been telling you, Captain, but I'll bet she never told you how she saved my life. Let me tell you."

The girl placed a hand before his lips, but he removed it, and went into details of their adventures that she had either omitted or slurred over. At the end, Captain Bedford sat up.

"I reckon now," he said, "I'm all cured. That little girl o' mine's just like—just like her mother."

"Then her mother must have been a wonder," smiled Dick.

"She was!" was the solemn report.

Captain Bedford Takes Command

The captain struggled to his feet despite Rose's protestations. "No, I ain't goin' to lie here any more," he added. "I got to get on deck. Ye've had enough on yer hands, daughter. Now it's my turn. Reckon I'm well enough to take a watch." He clutched at the rail and stared across the sea.

"Where's that lugger?" he demanded truculently.

"Over there," replied Rose, pointing.

Until then none of them had glanced in the direction of the puzzling object that had caused them so much debate, but when their eyes focused on it now they gave a little start. Captain Bedford grunted and recovered his voice first.

"Ye call that a ship!" he snorted. "Great Jehosaphat, ain't ye got eyes! That's land! An island!"

It was an island rising abruptly from the sea—not one of your coral-girted, palm-fringed islands of the tropics, but of rock-battered headland that caught the breaking surf and hurled it back shattered into foam. Perhaps a mile or two in width, and fifty feet high, it offered a safe asylum for shipwrecked sailors in the stormiest weather, could a safe landing be effected.

"We're drifting straight toward the island," Dick remarked. "In a couple of hours we'll reach it. Any danger of being wrecked on those rocks?"

"If we could work around to the other side o' the island," muttered the skipper, "we'd be safer."

After much awkward and difficult maneuvering, they brought the ship to safety in a sheltered cove.

Captain Bedford was anxious to begin making repairs so the Betty could sail out of her prison at the earliest possible time. "We can't reckon on more'n a week of fine weather," he said. "An' we got about all we can do to get off afore that."

Dick's curiosity to land on the island and survey the scene from the top of the cliffs was greater than any fear of future disaster. "I'm going ashore," he announced.

"What fur?" growled the skipper. "Ye won't see anythin' but water an' an island, an' ye can see them here."

"The island may be inhabited on the other side."

Captain Bedford snorted. "Ye expect to find a hotel an' a ship waitin' to take ye home?"

Dick shook his head and laughed. "No, but I'm curious to climb up there and get a look. I won't be gone long."

When he was near the summit, he increased his pace, eager to get a glimpse over the top.

"Great Jehosaphat, ain't you got eyes! That's land! An island!"

The island was long and narrow, with the opposite side disappearing in the sea gradually, a fine sandy beach fringing half of it in the shape of a crescent horseshoe. The descent from the rocks to the beach was sharp and abrupt. One could make it in a brisk run or walk.

Dick took this all in swiftly like the flash of a cinematograph. Then his eyes came to a sharp halt on an object in the cove formed by the crescent beach. With a quick intake of the breath, he exploded:

"The lugger! Tucu's crew's on the island!"

The lugger was anchored near the beach where she had probably ridden out the storm in perfect safety. Tucu had known of the island and its protecting cove. The sails were flapping idly in the breeze, stretched for drying in the warm sun. The deck was deserted. There was no sign of any one aboard.

Dick Makes Another Dismaying Discovery

But this was easily accounted for by the presence of two boats drawn up on the sands. The crew was all ashore. Dick could see them in scattered groups. A sudden fear that they had discovered the Betty on the opposite side of the island, and were preparing to attack her from the land side, made him wary and watchful. He ducked a little lower to avoid any possible detection.

Then his eyes took in other features of the beach. Some distance back from the water where the rocks broke through the sand, another group of seamen were huddled together. They were standing in an attitude of watchfulness and waiting. One of their number was advancing to confer with the Caribs.

Dick gazed in puzzled surprise and stupefied amazement. These others were white men—seamen, shipwrecks! He could make that out without difficulty. It flashed through his mind they had been wrecked on the island, and were bargaining with Tucu to take them off.

There were seven in all, counting their leader who was parleying with the Caribs. Dick frowned for no other reason than that something in their appearance, or in their leader's attitude, reminded him of the past and for a long time he was silent and thoughtful, striving to recall a fleeting memory that disturbed him.

Then with a little grunt, he sat up, shaded his eyes with both hands, and crouched as motionless as a tiger stalking his prey. His breath came in short, labored gasps.

"Hen Pettigrew!" his lips murmured finally.

The explanation of the group of white men on the beach was all comprehensible. One of the boats of the City of Bahia had landed on the island or been wrecked there.

The discovery was not pleasant to Dick. His recognition of the man who had pursued him half around a continent, shadowing him as persistently as a bulldog, and finally capturing him in a small, out of the way corner of the earth, gave him a distinct shock. With a quiver, he recalled Hen's parting words:

"If we meet again—on shore—I'll pinch you. It's my duty."

He glanced back of him. The schooner was resting quietly in its protecting prison, rising and falling lazily. On the deck Captain Bedford was busy making repairs to the sails and rigging, preparing for escape before another storm came. Rose stood alone at the bow, and as Dick looked she waved to him.

He groaned and waved back to her. Then violent words sprang to his lips. "Damn Hen! He shan't take me! I'll kill him first! It isn't fair! I've paid—paid enough for another's crime! I'll die fighting for freedom! Damn it, I'll jump into the sea first!"

Rose was still waving to him, cupping her hands occasionally as if shouting words of encouragement. He listened, but the distance was too far to catch her voice.

Suddenly the fit of angry passion deserted him, leaving him limp and weak. He groaned aloud: "She will know! Hen will tell her! I can't escape it!"

Her name sprang to his lips, and with a cry of anguish he dropped his head on the hard rocks. The inevitable fate that had pursued him was closing about him, and he was glad now that he hadn't spoken to her. He shivered at the thought. At least he had saved her that humiliation.

When he glanced up again his mind was calmer and his white face, drawn and strained, had less of the rebellious lines in it. The men on the beach were still parleying. Dick wondered what sort of bargain they could make with Tucu. The old pirate would demand all he could get and take it. Tucu was like Hen—inexorable and greedy.

While he looked the parley suddenly terminated, and Captain Tucu, who had been conversing with Hen, turned on his heels to walk back to his waiting Caribs; but half way there he wheeled so swiftly that Hen was taken off his guard. There was a puff of smoke, and a sharp report. Hen Pettigrew staggered back and nearly fell, reeling as if suddenly bereft of all powers of locomotion.

At the same instant a group of Caribs, led by Black Burley, started forward on the run, firing as they came. Dick saw Pettigrew reel again, and this time pitch head first into the sand. The Caribs rushed past him, filling the air with their shots.

Dick waited to hear the returning volley from the white seamen, as the Caribs advanced, dodging from side to side, but no response came from them. Tucu had armed every one of his crew but they were poor shots.

Stones Poor Weapons Against Guns

"They're waiting until the Caribs are nearer," Dick mused joyfully. "I wish"—a little regretfully—"Hen was there. Hen's a dead shot."

Nearer and nearer came the Caribs to the entrenched fortress of the seamen. Dick noticed for the first time they were protected by a rampart of rocks they had gathered for a breastwork.

"Hen's work," he chuckled. "Hen's shrewd in a fight. Didn't trust old Tucu."

The attacking party was within a stone's throw of the breastwork, and still the white men held their fire. Ten feet nearer, and the sailors rose as one man. Dick held his breath, expecting a withering volley from them; but instead a shower of rocks and stones filled the air.

Two of the Caribs went down, and a third stumbled and halted. The others dropped to the beach to escape the flying missiles, and the attack was temporarily checked.

"Why don't they shoot now?" growled Dick. "They could get them if—"

He stopped and drew a deep breath as the unpleasant explanation forced itself sharply upon his mind. The seamen from the wrecked steamer carried no firearms, or if they had taken them away with them, as Hen must have taken his, the salt water had rendered them useless. They were unarmed, except for the stones, while the Caribs were plentifully supplied with guns.

Dick's hand reached for his own pistol, and then dropped limply to his side. Captain Tucu had disarmed him when he was made a prisoner, and Dick hadn't found any substitute weapons. Were there more firearms aboard the Betty? Probably not; Captain Tucu had robbed the schooner of every weapon he could lay his hands on.

With a groan at his impotence, he turned back to the beach. The Caribs were attacking again.

JESUS AND COVETOUSNESS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:17; Proverbs 11:23, 24; Luke 12:13-21.

MEMORY SELECTION—He that trusteth in his riches shall fall; but the righteous shall flourish as a branch.—Proverbs 11:23.

The Ten Commandments, the study of which we conclude today (the remaining lessons of the quarter deal with other laws), have been revealed to us as being characterized by their brevity, their comprehensive touch with all of life, and fidelity to the right. But they are also unique and different from all other laws in that they reach into the inner recesses of a man's heart, a realm where only God can judge and act.

This last commandment (against covetousness) emphasizes that point, for it does not expressly require or forbid any act, but deals with the motive of man's action. Man can judge another man's acts, but he cannot judge his motives, desires or thoughts. God must do that.

But man can, by the grace of God, control his motives; and hence we have this commandment and its interpretation.

I. Covetousness—What It Is (Exod. 20:17).

To covet does not mean just to desire, but to have an unrestrained desire for that which we ought not to have or which by right belongs to another.

It shows itself in our day in a more general way—an inordinate desire for possessions in general. There too man loses himself. It may be a surprise to many to learn that coveting, or desiring what belongs to another, is a sin. It has become one of the "respectable sins" accepted in the best circles and practiced by many church people.

As a matter of fact, this sin underlies all the other sins against which the commandments speak. He who has a love for money and an evil desire to have his neighbor's possessions will hate, lie, steal, cheat, kill. In fact, as Dr. G. Campbell Morgan says, "The whole realm of human interrelations is disorganized and broken up by the dishonoring of the tenth commandment."

II. Covetousness—What It Does (Prov. 11:23, 24; Luke 12:13-21).

1. It Makes a Man Stingy (Prov. 11:23, 24). The righteous man seeks that which is good and he knows nothing of the close-fisted stinginess which withholds from God and man. Sometimes to economize is to lose, and to be liberal is to gain—especially in the things of God.

God gives liberally (James 1:5), and the man who knows God scatters not only his money, but his riches of mind and service for God's glory.

In sad contrast is the man who keeps his possessions for himself and reaps only the barrenness of soul and leanness of life.

2. It Makes a Man Envious (Luke 12:13-15). Noting the ability of Jesus in dealing with others, this man thought to divert the Lord from his real ministry to the souls of men to the settling of social problems—all because he was greedy.

Some church leaders think that is our business now—to preach and promote a social gospel. They had better reread verse 14.

3. It Makes a Man Selfish (Luke 12:16, 17). The one who was known to his friends as the "rich man" (v. 16) was known to God as a "fool" (v. 20), because having more than he could use he hoarded it for himself. One wonders what he had to say for himself when that very night he was called into the presence of God to give an account of his stewardship (v. 20). If you are similarly situated and have the same attitude, what will you say in that day?

4. It Makes a Man Proud (Luke 12:18). All around him were the hungry. He needed no barns, for there were the empty hands of the needy; but money had made him hard and proud. He would build bigger barns, perhaps the biggest in that community. People would marvel at his prosperity and he would live long to enjoy it.

But it did not work out that way, for, alas, it is true of covetousness that—

5. It Makes a Man Foolish (Luke 12:19-21). The man who reckons without God is sure to come to grief. Leaving him out of one's thinking and planning invites disaster.

God called, and he who had thought to go on for years in selfish pleasure, found that he must go and leave it all. Worse yet, he had to face the judgment of God upon his eternal soul.

Do not fail to note that there is a way to lay up treasures in heaven—by a "close walk with Christ, coming to appreciate and cultivate the joys of the spirit," and so using one's possessions that they count for the glory of God. Even gold can be so invested for God as to send it on to eternity. What an opportunity!

A BED with a valance to the floor has a well-dressed appearance that is lacking when a short spread is used. A plain valance like this repeating a color in

One of the best home ways to

BUILD UP RED BLOOD

If you lack BLOOD-IRON

You girls and women who suffer so from simple anemia that you're pale, weak, "dragged out"—this may be due to lack of blood-iron. So try Lydia E. Pinkham's TABLETS—one of the best home ways to build up red blood—in such cases. Pinkham's Tablets are one of the greatest blood-iron tonics you can buy! At all drugstores.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

At This Time

(Compiled from number of sources considered reliable by Farm Adviser Hughes of Cook County)

Fat Stock: Chaos rules in markets. Producers and consumers are not sympathetic to OPA controls. Black markets will get best meat. Impossible to enforce. Public opinion may force relinquishment. Bumper corn and oats crop (not in Cook County) in prospect. Pig production trend is downward. Feeder calves high. Poultry raised is down in number.

Dairy: Milk output is slightly down. Fewer cows, higher production per cow. Farmers are culling old 3 tilted Nelles out. Butter production is down.

Grains: Corn, heavy crop coming on, storage low. Oats, heavy crop, storage high. Soybeans down in production. Bumper wheat crop, low storage.

Fruit and Vegetables: Fruit crop generally high, apples some lower.

Index on vegetables: raised highest any farm commodity during war years and new production areas have been brought in especially in midwest states. Advise conservative procedure for readjustments ahead.

National Income: A change of $7 National Income has been accompanied by a change of $1 in Farm Income in recent years. Farm income was up first in war boom and presumably will decline first.

Corresponding time of first decline after World War I is fall of 1945.

Labor Costs: Very high on farms.

MANY VETERANS NOT REQUESTING ON THE JOB
TRAINING ON FARMS

"Our impression is that many veterans returning to farms are not availing themselves of their right for On the Job Training in Agriculture, states Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes.

So far, there are openings at all approved high schools, Palatine, Dundee and Bloom Township high schools, for classes that have been set up for veterans going back to farms.

"Our contacts with these classes have convinced us that these schools are providing valuable instruction for veterans on farms that will recompense them in part for the time they gave in military service. Usually three hours are taken each night. The instructor will map out a program for regular work on the farm with attention to topics such as soil testing, farm management, tractor repair, livestock disease control, breeding and registry of livestock, balancing rations etc. The jobs the trainee will be actually performing on the farm. Vegetable farming will follow a program adapted to the needs of the veteran who is training for that kind of work.

"Assuming the veteran would have advanced, perhaps to the management of a farm, had he not gone into service, let us say, the government will supplement his earnings to that extent which is right and fair.

"May we suggest you contact the agricultural instructors, Mr. Mayhew at Bloom, Mr. Stinson at Palatine or Mr. Murphy at Dundee."

Rufe's Ramblings

He had been a familiar figure for so many years that it was almost impossible for anybody along the Windy Mountain & Eastern to picture the white haired veteran in overalls in any way except with the window of his cab forming a frame for it. But time had been rolling along too, and finally he became one of the group who came down to the depot just to meet the train. For several days after his retirement there was no one more faithful about showing up in the waiting room, and then he was seen no more. One of the topics of the day was still about the old fellow's last run and everybody was wondering what had become of him when one day a well dressed stranger walked into the trainmaster's office and asked for a job as brakeman.

Nobody around the station knew the man. He had never had any railroad experience to refer to, but he could pass the required examinations and they needed men. So after making a few student trips he was marked up on the list and in a short while the topic of the day changed to something else and the stranger was just another trainman.

In the past years I have had good friends who for one reason or another didn't give their real names nor ages, and while I have never worked "under a flag" myself I have always considered their secrets as inviolable as though they had been my own. That's why I will not mention any names in this Rambling. Furthermore, if any readers of this paper happen to be Californians I proffer my apologies for telling such an incident about a man who was never out of the state of North Carolina in all his life, but I happen to know that the old veteran shaved off his whiskers, dyed his hair black, and while none of the group with whom he works knows about it, he is drawing an engineer's pension and a brakeman's pay check from the same railroad.

But it can happen, in your new home, unless you give your contractor instructions to include adequate wiring plans in his original blueprints.

In a home with adequate wiring you'll have circuits enough to supply electricity for all your present appliances, as well as for those soon coming your way. There'll be multiple switches to light your way before entering a room and plenty of convenience outlets. Dimming lights, "loafing" appliances and lengthy extension cords vanish

... you'll have greater safety, too.

Now, before you build, is the time to check with your contractor to be sure the wiring plans for your new home will suit your needs. Find out from us or your electric contractor how easy and inexpensive it is to enjoy the convenience of adequate wiring in your home.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Sept. 8, was:

"MAN"

The Golden Text was:

"Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright" (Ecc. 7: 29).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever" (1 John 2: 15-17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"If man were dust in his earliest stage of existence, we might admit the hypothesis that he returns eventually to his primitive condition; but man was never more nor less than man... Man is the idea of Spirit; he reflects the beatific presence, illumining the universe with light. Man is deathless, spiritual. He is above sin or frailty. He does not cross the barriers of time into the vast forever of Life, but he coexists with God and the universe" (pp. 244, 266).

Fall Is Good Time To Seed Waterways, Says Farm Adviser

Grass waterways are needed on many Cook County farms, suggests Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes, and this fall is a fine time to start them, according to information received from Ernest D. Walker, extension soil conservationist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

A fine grassed channel on a central Illinois farm carries runoff water from a 70 acre watershed after the heaviest rains with no evidence of gully. At the same time the title line under the waterway is protected from danger of washing out. Since the channel can be crossed with farm machinery at any point, the field can be cultivated more easily than if gullies were allowed to form.

Although good results are being secured in either spring or fall, the odds are somewhat in favor of fall seeding.

waterways. Rains usually come more gently, the soil is drier and can absorb more water and weed competition is less serious in the fall.

The following suggestions for establishing waterways are given by Professor Walker and R. C. Hay, extension agricultural engineer.

1. Shape a flat bottomed channel wide enough to carry the largest flood. Use a plow, disk, harrow and corrugated roller to form a firm foundation. For large gullies a grader may be needed for shaping.

2. Apply eight to 10 tons of manure per acre and work into the seedbed. Lime should be applied if the soil is acid.

3. Seed 12 to 15 pounds of timothy and red top on each acre of waterway. A nurse crop of oats, wheat or rye will help to hold the soil while the grasses are getting started.

4. Early next spring repair and reseed any areas which have been washed out.

5. Mow the channel regularly to prevent the nurse crop from smothering grass seedlings and to control weeds.

Further details of grass waterway construction are to be found in a leaflet "Grass or Gullies", which can be obtained from the farm adviser.

A QUEEN COMES BACK . . . Thirty tons of paint bring peacetime colors to the Queen Elizabeth, Cunard White Star liner, now being readied for the trans-Atlantic run.

QUEEN OF THE SEAS

Luxury Liner To Make Maiden Voyage Oct. 16

NEW YORK.—With the greatest reconditioning job in maritime history now nearing its final stages, the world's largest passenger liner, Cunard's 83,763-ton Queen Elizabeth, is being prepared to launch the career postponed by war for more than six years.

Transformed into a new ship, the Queen Elizabeth will make her maiden voyage starting regular service from Southampton to New York on October 16. The return voyage from New York is scheduled for October 25.

The gray war paint that shrouded the ship when she slipped across the Atlantic in March, 1940, on the first of many vital war missions, has been replaced by the colors of peace—shiny black hull, gleaming white superstructure, red and black funnels, colors of the Cunard line. Thirty tons of paint were required to cover the ship's million square feet of exterior surface.

Decks worn by the tramp of 811,000 pairs of military boots have been relaid. Blackout paint has been scraped off 2,000 portholes. Miles of temporary wiring and piping have been dismantled. The ship has been stripped of such military appurtenances as 10,000 stateroom berths, temporary sanitary facilities, bulkheads, storerooms and troop fittings.

The reconversion job began immediately after the Queen Elizabeth completed her final voyage as a war transport last March 6.

Now a luxury ship, the Queen Elizabeth will be furnished with equipment and decorations ordered and delivered before the advent of war, then stored in the United States, Australia and other places throughout the world for the past six years.

Fittings include 21,000 pieces of furniture and equipment, 4,500 settees, 4,000 mattresses and pillows, 6,000 curtains and bedspreads, 2,000 carpets, 1,500 wardrobes and dressing tables and 10 miles of carpets.

As the final step in reconversion, the ship will enter the graving dock for examinations of the four propellers, each weighing 32 tons, the giant 140-ton rudder and other underwater parts.

One-way rates will start at $165 for tourist class, ranging up to $365 for first class.

One-man School Expands as Veterans Flock for Ratings

DENVER, COLO.—The traditional old one-man school has been put on a wholesale basis here, giving 2,318 veterans the equivalent of a high school diploma in the last 10 weeks.

Operator of the school is a gray-haired, scholarly little man, Dr. John C. Unger, whose main job is that of superintendent of secondary education for Colorado. His present task is to put into practical operation one of the primary guaranties of the G. I. Bill of Rights—the opportunity for each veteran to continue his education.

He has turned the senate chamber of the state house into a school room with men and women of an average age of 21 sitting at senatorial desks and doing harder thinking than most state senators ever do.

In co-operation with the Veterans' administration and armed forces institute, Dr. Unger interviews and tests veterans from all over the state to provide them with certificates showing they possess knowledge equal to a high school education.

With such certificates, the veterans go confidently to employers to apply for jobs or enroll in colleges to study anything from the ministry to aeronautical engineering.

The two-hour tests in grammar, mathematics, science, literature and social studies are not required of all applicants. Credits are allowed for training received in the service.

Oldest man to take the tests was a 47-year-old Trinidad naval veteran and the youngest was a 19-year-old Denver youth, who enlisted in the army when only 16.

Dr. Unger tests men still in the service who come in from such posts as Camp Carson at Colorado Springs and Lowry Field in Denver. He has visited Fitzsimmons General hospital several times to examine patients there. Those who can't pass are given friendly counsel on what they need to study to qualify for certificates.

Kansas Sun's Rays Ignite Glass on Bag

TOPEKA, KAN.—It's dangerous when the thermometer reads 105, Miss Ceora Lanham is ready to testify. As she stood waiting for a bus under the sweltering sun, her purse burst into flames. The sun's hot rays had passed through a glass handle on the bag.

BONE TO PICK . . . Two dogs, who have a bone to pick with Santa Monica city council over ordinance prohibiting them from doing anything more than sniffing on public sidewalks and in parks, picket city hall.

Wedding Drinks Tip Most Britons Off Wagon

LONDON.—Why do people take to drink?

Drinking toasts at weddings is the principal reason for tipping a person off the wagon, say Britons who like a quick one now and then. Teetotalers, however, say "not wishing to be different" is the hardest push off the wagon.

Twelve hundred young people, including doctors, parlor maids, government clerks and miners, gave the answers to a questionnaire sent out by the British Temperance league.

Tipplers gave these four main reasons for their weakness: Toasting at weddings, loneliness, not wishing to be different and enjoyment of the drinking fraternity's company.

All the reasons were among 17 "possible causes" suggested by Herbert Jones, league secretary, who is a non-drinker.

NIMITZ WILL RESIGN

WASHINGTON.—Adm. Chester Nimitz, hero of the Pacific and one of the most efficient leaders of the navy, has indicated to friends that he will retire as chief of naval operations after about one year of his four-year appointment.

Backstage reason is that Nimitz finds his job chiefly requires lobbying naval appropriations through congress, and he would much rather be at sea than playing politics. Furthermore, Washington society is running him ragged.

Mrs. Nimitz doesn't feel the same way at all about Washington society—which perhaps is one reason why the admiral wants to get out of the capital. He hates dinners, loathes cocktail parties and feels ill-at-ease at receptions. But Mrs. Nimitz loves them and insists on dragging her husband along when she makes the rounds.

Rigors of war in the Pacific now have begun to look like heaven in contrast with social Washington and when the right time comes next year, the admiral plans quietly to pull out.

Note—Grandson of a Texas hotel-keeper, Admiral Nimitz hopes to retire to Texas or the California coast.

PRESIDENTIAL SEASICKNESS

Those who suffer from stomach maladjustments when they travel by sea or air will be glad to know that President Truman not only sympathizes with them but also has found a fairly good remedy for seasickness. The cure is not 100 per cent effective, however, and that is one reason the President's yacht turned south.

Mr. Truman had a bottle of seasickness pills with him on his recent cruise—a remedy concocted by the Canadian army for use by its troops when they crossed the Atlantic or went ashore in tank landing barges. It is supposed to be the best thing so far developed to cure seasickness.

The President always carries a bottle with him when afloat and eats the pellets almost as if they were candy. On his first important sea trip aboard the cruiser Augusta to Potsdam one year ago, he took this medicine along and apparently avoided seasickness.

However, Mr. Truman, born and raised on the Midwest prairies, doesn't get the same kick out of the sea as did F.D.R.

HUSHED-UP INCIDENT

Tenseness of the Russo-American situation in southeast Europe is illustrated by an incident in Austria so far hushed up by the censors.

For some time, the Soviet government has been pressing Gen. Mark Clark to permit cross-examination of Yugoslav, Baltic and other displaced persons in Austria. Many of them rebelled against going back to their homelands for fear of Soviet reprisals, but some were willing to go. Finally General Clark agreed that the Soviet could send in 12 men to ask them questions.

While the Soviet team was at work with the displaced persons, General Clark was getting secret information from one of the D.P.s as to what was going on. Eventually this informant reported to Clark that he was under Soviet scrutiny.

So Clark secretly placed an American machine gun in a room above the informant's and another machine gun on the roof of the building opposite.

A night or two later a squad of Russians drove up to the informant's home, knocked down his door and carried him out in the street. Immediately the U. S. troops turned on their searchlights and arrested the Russians.

Here was the pay-off. Our allies, the Russians, were dressed in the uniforms of American military police.

TRIGGER-HAPPY TITO

The question of using "horse-and-buggy" tactics to calm Dictator Tito of Yugoslavia, especially the navy's dispatch of cruisers to Trieste, has been criticized privately inside the U. S. armed forces.

U. S. warships at the head of the Adriatic, according to army men, could be caught in a trap and might be sunk with one bomb. Furthermore, the cost of operating one cruiser in contrast to an airplane is tremendous.

Therefore, U. S. army commanders in Europe have proposed that we send one or two B-29s over Yugoslavia to see what Tito's trigger-happy warriors do about it.

ELDER STATESMAN BARUCH

Kindly elder statesman Bernie Baruch has made a private proposition to the state department that he be allowed to read its secret cables from diplomatic posts throughout the world. These are a gold mine of information for which any business man or banker would give his eye-teeth. Baruch promised, a little naively, that if he was given the daily secret intelligence summary of world affairs, he would show them only to his two investment-banker assistants.

New Hormone Weed Killer Effective

2, 4-D Will Not Kill All Troublesome Weeds

Farm losses from weeds exceed those from all other causes. With the development of 2,4-d, and organic acid (2,4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid), by the USDA and the New York agricultural experiment station, farmers will be saved millions of dollars annually.

Working different from most herbicides, 2,4-D seems to affect the growth mechanism of the plant and travels some distance through the plant to induce changes which cause death.

Recent experiments determined that solutions containing from .10 to .15 of 1 per cent were sufficient to kill dandelion, common plaitain, buckhorn, chickweed and pennywort.

The cost has been reduced to such an extent that for from $4 to $6 it is possible to clean up an acre of land.

With some weeds like Canada thistle, 2,4-D has not proven effective in killing the roots. It has been successful with bitterweed, bindweed, wild mustard, wild radish, bull thistle, chickweed, ragweed, goldenrod, burdock and many others including such shrubs and vines as choke cherry, wild honeysuckle, wild grape, locust, Virginia creeper, sumac and poison ivy.

Take Off Water Chill

TAKE THE CHILL OFF

Many gallons of milk are lost by the average cow due to being forced to drink ice cold water. It is not too early to make plans for removing the chill from water. New type electric de-icers on the market have proven satisfactory. Local costs should determine the type to be used.

Barrel Chicken Coop

A serviceable brood coop is made by sawing a barrel of any kind in the middle, making the cut sloping, as shown in the illustration. When an entrance hole has been sawed out on one side of each half, two coops will be completed. When the half barrel is inverted, the top will slope sufficiently to turn water. The coop must be placed so that water will not drain into the coop.

Pudding Ice Cream Keeps Family Happy

It's easy to keep the family happy with plenty of ice cream, what with a modern refrigerator and a supply of fruit and cream, honey or sirup on hand, according to the Country Cooking editor of nationally circulated Capper's Farmer.

The recipe for Pudding Ice Cream below, won first prize in the recent Capper's Farmer Refrigerator Dessert contest for Mrs. Bertha Oltman, Bay County, Michigan.

PUDDING ICE CREAM

1 tsp. unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup milk
1/4 c. milk
1 pkg. vanilla pudding mix
1/2 c. white corn sirup
1/2 c. cream
1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 c. black walnuts

Soften gelatin in the 1/4 cup of milk. Add remaining milk to pudding mix; place over low heat and stir until it boils and thickens. Stir softened gelatin into pudding to dissolve it. Remove at once from heat. Add sirup, cream and vanilla. Pour into refrigerator trays; freeze until slightly firm. Then scrape from tray into bowl; beat with rotary beater till smooth but not melted. Stir in chopped nuts. Return to tray and freeze. Serves 6.

Salmon-Tomato Pie Has Taste Appeal

There's true flavor teamwork when salmon and tomatoes are combined in a pie shell, writes Marjorie Griffin, Rural Home editor of nationally - circulated Capper's Farmer.

"If you are short on time, dispense with the crust," she advises homemakers in the magazine read by 1,300,000 farm families. "Just have a fish and vegetable casserole. Grated cheese is a delightful topping."

TOMATO-SALMON PIE

3 tbsp. chopped onion
1/4 c. chopped green pepper
1/2 c. margarine
2 1/2 c. canned tomatoes
3 tbsp. flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
2 tsp. sugar
1 1/2 lb. can salmon
grated cheese
1 unbaked pie crust

Saute onion and green pepper in margarine. Add the tomatoes, flour, seasonings and sugar. Cook about 15 minutes. Fit pie crust into baking dish; spread salmon over top of it. Cover with the tomato sauce. Bake at 400° F. for 20 to 25 minutes.

Natural Zoos

British Malaya is one of the world's greatest natural "zoos." The earth, the air, and the water are alive with exhibits—elephants and mouse deer, tigers and rats, rhinoceroses and tapirs, butterflies and buffaloes, birds, snakes and crocodiles—and fish by the riverful.

Navy Tars

Back in the days of sailing ships, when hats first were introduced into the British navy, they were made of sail cloth, heavily tarred to add stiffness. These hats were called "tarpaulins," a term which was also applied to the men who wore them. Later this was shortened to "tar," a name by which sailors have been known ever since.

OCT. 15 TO NOV. 15 DATES FOR MAIL TO ARMED FORCES

During October 15 and November 15, requests from the addressees are not required. Patrons should endorse each parcel "Christmas Parcel."

Parcels shall not exceed 70 pounds in weight or 100 inches in length and girth combined. The various services have pointed out that members of the armed forces are amply provided with food and clothing and the public is urged not to include such matter in gifts. The public can ascertain what articles their relatives and friends overseas can secure locally by correspondence with such person and should limit their gifts to articles not readily obtainable by the recipient.

Not more than one Christmas parcel or package shall be accepted for mailing in any one week when sent by or on behalf of the same person or concern to or for the same addressee.

Since Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel may receive parcels without a request at any time of the year, it is not the policy to encourage the mailing of parcels to such personnel during any particular period of the year. IT IS SUGGESTED, however, that such parcels intended as Christmas gifts be mailed not later than October 15 to afford some degree of probability of delivery prior to Christmas Day depending upon the destination.

Christmas cards for Army personnel overseas may be mailed at any time but patrons must mail such cards prior to November 15th, if they are to have a reasonable expectation of delivery prior to Christmas.

Christmas cards for Army personnel overseas may be mailed at any time but patrons must mail such cards prior to Nov. 15th, if they are to have a reasonable expectation of delivery prior to Christmas.

Valuable articles should be registered or insured. Perishable matter will not be accepted and the sending of fragile articles is discouraged.

Certificate Of Tax Levy Must Be Filed

Mr. Louis Bottino, County Superintendent of schools has sent out reminders to all Township school Treasurers, that all school districts must file Certificate of Tax Levy with the Treasurer's on or before the last Tuesday in September, the 24th.

Failure to comply with the above may result in tax objections being filed against the district's levy.

The law also provides that the township treasurer shall return the Certificate of Tax Levy to the County Clerk on or before the first Tuesday in October. Tax levies must be made with consideration to the amounts set up in the Budget of the districts. Levies should not call for amounts in excess of the needs as shown in the district's budget.

Only Board of Education Districts are now required to comply with the Budget law. And it is for these districts especially that care should be taken to insure against possible tax objections due to levies being out of harmony with the budget of the district.

School districts in general will be able to raise from 5 to 12 percent additional under the new assessment laws. However, the amounts of increase will differ from district to district depending upon a number of factors peculiar to each district.

The tax levy is the lifeline of the school district. Without sufficient funds good schools are not possible. Everything must be done to insure adequate financing in each district, and avoid getting into the position where the chronic tax objectors will take from us funds which are much needed to operate our schools.

Furniture Industry

North Carolina is credited with being the country's largest producer of medium and low-priced furniture, with 12 per cent; Michigan is listed as producing the largest proportion of high-cost furniture, with 5.6 per cent. More than 42 per cent of all freight shipments of wood furniture by weight originates in the south.

Coal Chutes

Coal chutes capable of dumping 43 tons of coal in 75 seconds are now in use for the refueling of locomotives.

This production will be the third this year and the fourteenth since the beginning of the Players four years ago.

Patricia Lannon, former Palos resident, graduate of Goodman and fresh from professional experience in the East is directing, "Blithe Spirit". The leads in the play will be performed by LeMay Smith, Mary-Lou DeBacher, Jack Richards and Louise Russell. In supporting roles, Jane Henkle, Bob Russell and Harriet Kantor will be seen.
